Houston, Texas — December 4, 2014 — KBR Inc. (NYSE: KBR) announced today it has signed an agreement with PT Rekayasa Industri (REKIND) to provide ammonia technology in the Indonesian, Southeast Asian and Asian markets.

Under this agreement, REKIND will exclusively promote and license KBR's proprietary ammonia technology, along with KBR's proprietary equipment, catalyst and automation packages to ammonia producers in the region. REKIND was established by the Indonesia government in 1981 to develop national capabilities in engineering, procurement, and construction services for large industrial plants. “This alliance with REKIND helps KBR increase its competitive edge for licensing ammonia technology particular in Indonesia, Southeast Asia and Asian markets,” said Stuart Bradie, KBR President and CEO. “Together, we are well-positioned to win more ammonia projects in the region.”

Considered a world leader in ammonia technology, KBR has been involved in the licensing, design, engineering and/or construction of more than 230 ammonia plants worldwide.

Expected revenue from this alliance will be booked as licenses are awarded.
